Conspiracy Against Former Agents

Have you ever noticed now that your retired from the Bureau that everything seems uphill from where you are? Hills are longer, stairs are steeper. Groceries are heavier. And, everything is farther away. The other day I walked to the corner and I was astounded to discover how long our street had become! And my gun. I only pick it up once in awhile but it is so heavy, I can hardly hold it in one hand. How did I ever shoot with both hands? How do you put the bullets in?

And, you know, folks are less considerate now, especially the young ones. They speak in whispers all the time! I also think they are much younger than I was at the same age. On the other hand, people my own age are so much older than I am. I ran into an old friend the other day and he has aged so much that he didn't even recognize me. The people who make bathroom scales are pulling the same prank, but in reverse. Do they think I actually "believe" the number I see on that dial? HA! I would never let myself weigh that much! Just who do these people think they're fooling?

I'd like to call up someone in authority to report what's going on-but the telephone company is in on the conspiracy too: they've printed the phone books in such small type that no one could ever find a number in there! All I can do is pass along this warning: Maturity is under attack! Unless something drastic happens, pretty soon, all former agents will be placed in (you know) homes. Have a safe and great summer. We will see you in the fall.

SUBJECT: 911 - As I was getting into bed the other night, I could see I had left the light on in the garage. I could see light coming through the bedroom window. As I got up to shut the curtain (rather than go outside to shut off the stupid light), I saw there were 2 guys taking things from the garage. I immediately called 911, but was told that they didn't have anyone in the area at this time", but would send someone over as soon as possible. I said OK, hung up, and waited one minute. Then I called 911 again. I said, "I called you a minute ago because there was someone in my garage. Well, you don't have to worry about that now because I just shot them." Within two minutes there were 3 cruisers in front of my house, a SWAT van, and the paramedics. They immediately apprehended the burglars. However, the lieutenant was really mad. "I thought you said you'd shot them!" I replied, "I thought you said there was nobody available."

USAA - is looking for a full-time insurance investigator to work with USAA's Special Investigative Unit (SIU), preferably living in the New Orleans area, but anyone living in Mississippi, Alabama, or the Florida panhandle would be considered. Work will be home based, salary starting around $50 K (negotiable), car provided, and above area is territory to be covered, however USAA allows investigators to utilize PI vendors to assist in investigations which will narrow the travel down considerably. Inquiries should be directed to Tom Brydon, SIU, USAA Property and Casualty Insurance Company, Boynton Beach, FL, telephone area code 561-641-2021.

LONG TERM COVERAGE - I suggest that before choosing the Government program everyone interested in long term car insurance contact USAA or even John Hancock before purchasing it from the Government. If anyone is in good health for his or her age an individual policy will provide better coverage at a little less money. The Government only rates the person applying on his or her age. a person in very good health at age 60 will pay the same premium as someone the same age in not so good health.

SA BRUCE J. GEBHARDT - was appointed Executive Assistant Director for Criminal Investigations by the Director on 2/27/02. He was a new SA in the Denver Division in 1976. A man in Grand island Nebraska hijacked a small plane and pilot forcing him at gun point to fly the hi-jacker to Denver. The hi jacker talked to the tower and said he would crash the small plane into the airport unless some airline would give him a jet and pilot to fly him out of the country. All the airlines declined. Ports of Call Travel Club in Denver had several jets and the President of the Club offered a jet and pilot. Two SAs Kenneth Kirwin and a new SA, Bruce J. Gebhardt were planted in the rear of the cabin behind the seats. The hi jacker boarded the jet pushing the small plane pilot ahead up, holding a shot gun in his back. he proceeded down the cabin and when he neared the SAs, they jumped up and shot him dead before he would get a shot off. No one else was shot. Several Denver SAs (including myself) were members of Ports of Call. The date of the hijacking was April 19, 1976.

KARACHI, Pakistan - FBI agents joined Pakistani police in the pre-dawn raids that scooped up 26 suspected al Qaeda and Taliban fugitives from homes in the northern Pakistan cities of Faisalbad and Lahore, in the most visible cooperation to date between America and Pakistan law enforcement in the war against terrorism.

WASHINGTON (AP) - While two U.S. citizens have been arrested for espionage since July, increased FBI (news - web sites) lie detector tests have uncovered several lesser security transgressions among FBI employees, the agency's security chief said.

None of the information gained from the 700 polygraph examinations since the arrest of FBI spy Robert Hanssen (news - web sites) has turned up a security breach as serious, Kenneth Senser, head of the agency's new security division, told a Senate committee.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Most large corporations and government agencies have been attacked by computer hackers, but more often and more frequently they do not inform authorities of the breaches, an FBI survey finds. The survey released Sunday found about 90 percent of respondents detected computer security breaches in the past year but only 34 percent reported those attacks to authorities. Many respondents cited the fear of bad publicity about computer security.

The History of FBI Headquarters: The J. Edgar Hoover FBI Building

From its inception in 1908 as the Bureau of Investigation until 1975, the main offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) had been housed in the Department of Justice Building. The first request for a separate FBI building occurred in 1939. Although the Public Buildings Agency initiated plans for an FBI building in 1941, American entry into World War II necessitated postponing all government building projects. The next serious request to Congress for a separate building was not made until 1961.

Congress approved a separate FBI building in April, 1962. The General Services Administration (GSA), which handled public building construction, allocated $12,265,000 for architectural and engineering design. At that time, the total estimated cost was $60,000,000. GSA selected Charles F. Murphy and Associates, Chicago, Illinois, as architects, and Berswenger, Hoch, Arnold and Associates, Akron, Ohio, for engineering. Although all conferences between GSA and the architects were open to Bureau representatives, and GSA sought FBI opinion, neither the FBI nor the Department of Justice had to approve the exterior design. The Bureau, however, allocated the interior space.

On January 2, 1963, GSA announced the approval of the site for the FBI building bounded by Pennsylvania Avenue and E Street and Ninth and Tenth Streets, Northwest. GSA purchased the land at a cost of $41.17 per square foot. The original design prepared in 1963 by Charles F. Murphy and Associates was a traditional box-like structure. It incorporated the Bureau's request for a central core of files surrounded by offices.

The Pennsylvania Avenue Advisory Council revealed its grand design for Pennsylvania Avenue in April, 1964. The Council envisioned a rejuvenated Pennsylvania Avenue, its north side lined with shops and buildings with open arcades and courtyards. Because major parades marched down the Avenue, all new buildings would have open second floors to accommodate spectators. The FBI building would be the first government structure to be built on the Avenue's north side. Therefore, the Pennsylvania Avenue Advisory Council urged GSA to redesign the building to conform to the plan. GSA agreed.
